

Study information

The Institute of Architecture at the University of Applied Arts Vienna is one of the best schools of architecture worldwide. The goal is to teach architecture as an encompassing thought process that puts the architect in the position to define architecture as a three-dimensional expression of culture and focus on future urban design and socially relevant issues. Throughout the semester, internationally renowned architects, artists and theorists are invited to take part in presentations to guarantee a global approach and give input to stimulate an architectural discourse.

Architecture at the University of Applied Arts Vienna is taught as an integrative discipline; an entity of artistic, technical, organisational, human and social aspects. A profound knowledge of creative, analytical design is the core within a networked study. The architectural study is offered only as a Master Program that takes 6 semesters and finishes with a MArch, teaching language is English.

Architectural design is taught in 3 studios; each with its own focus.
