§ 1. Preamble

With the Vienna Master of Arts in Applied Human Rights the University of Applied Arts Vienna aims at dealing with the challenges presented by digitalization, globalization, and neoliberalism in today's world by investigating a dual question. On the one hand, to investigate the discourse regarding human rights as a central political factor that may both highlight and combat the disposition to crises in the new world (dis-)order; on the other hand, to pursue the question of which role artistic and cultural practices may take on to serve the debate over human rights in these areas of conflict.

§ 2. Programme Description and Objective

The Vienna Master of Arts in Applied Human Rights at the University of Applied Arts Vienna provides students with in-depth interdisciplinary training on history, philosophy, politics and the legal significance of internationally recognized human rights standards and their protection by international organizations such as the United Nations, the Council of Europe, the European Union, the African Union, or the Organization of American States. In addition to theoretical foundations, the Vienna Master teaches a wide range of practical skills for the implementation of human rights, and to highlight the importance of human rights for solving global problems of the 21st century. Furthermore, methods and forms of contemporary art are brought up for discussion that contradict existing inequalities and that – based on their dedicated, applied or activist self-conception – perceive themselves as part of a culture of human rights. The aim of this Master programme is to identify the connections between the global crises as well as the potential and practical applicability of artistic-cultural work.

§ 3. Qualification Profile and Academic Degree

As an interdisciplinary Master degree focussing on legal, social, art and cultural sciences, the Master of Arts in Applied Human Rights aims, in the framework of a contemporary teaching concept, at providing comprehensive skills in the practical application of human rights. The graduates of the Vienna Master of Applied Human Rights will be qualified to work in the fields of (inter-)national human rights and its intersections to the cultural sector. Graduates will be able to critically analyse global events and developments, navigate in different human rights systems, as well as combine and apply the practice and theory of the diverse and changeable realm of human rights. Graduates will be enabled to scientifically research questions relevant to human rights, recognize violations of human rights, plan and implement human rights projects. In the implementation, they work with modern communication strategies with particular reference to art and culture.

The Vienna Master of Arts in Applied Human Rights is set up as a postgraduate university study programme pursuant to § 56 para. 2 Universities Act and as such is the equivalent to a regular Master study programme pursuant to § 51 para. 2 subpara. 5 Universities Act. The degree entitles the holder to admission to a regular doctoral programme, under the provision that all other legal provisions are met. Graduates of this postgraduate university study programme will receive the academic degree of „Master of Arts (Continuing Education)“–abbreviated to „MA (CE)“.

§ 4. Language of Instruction

- (1) The language of instruction is English. Proficient English language skills are required.
- (2) Students are to write their scientific papers and the Master thesis / the final artistic project with scientific reflection in English.

§ 5. Admission

- (1) Prerequisites for admission are:
 1. Completed university or college degree, or at least 5 years of professional experience pertinent to the subject, the equal value of which is to be assessed by the admission committee.
 2. Positive result of the admission procedure.
- (2) The application procedure consists of two parts.
 - a) CV, motivation letter, application documents (submission in writing):

CV: applicants provide a written overview of qualifications and competences acquired as well as of the focus of their work activities to date.

Motivation letter: description of the individual motivation and professional development ideas, expectations regarding the Vienna Master of Arts in Applied Human Rights, and the anticipated gain in competencies.

Application documents: Applicants send supporting documentation, such as university graduation certificates, employment references, and evidence of English language skills. The up-to-date and exact procedure can always be found on the website.
 - b) Personal Interview (oral-practical): Vienna Master team members interview applicants regarding their motivation and how they envision their future after graduating from the Master programme.
- (3) The admission procedure has been passed successfully when all parts are positively assessed.
- (4) The panel for the admission process consists of team members of the Vienna Master programme.

§ 6. Programme Structure

- (1) The programme of the university course Vienna Master of Arts in Applied Human Rights consists of modules amounting to 120 ECTS points. The maximum total duration of study is 6 semesters (4 main semesters including 2 extra semesters).
- (2) The introductory semester is followed by two semesters that deal with topics more extensively. The Master thesis is to be produced in the final semester in form of a scientific thesis or a final artistic project with a scientific reflection.
- (3) The team of the Vienna Master supports the participants in achieving their goals in the postgraduate university study programme and their professional development in the form of individual coaching (consultation hours).
- (4) The team of the Vienna Master itself is supported in educational and academic matters by a scientific advisory board consisting of representatives of the Angewandte, scientists, and experts from the fields of human rights, and art and culture. The members of the scientific advisory board are appointed by the scientific director of the Vienna Master programme.

(5) The Master programme comprises eight compulsory modules, one of which includes producing and defending the Master thesis:

- I. Interdisciplinary Understanding of Human Rights (16 ECTS)
- II. Introduction to Arts and Culture (6 ECTS)
- III. International Protection of Human Rights (11 ECTS)
- IV. Scientific Competence and Artistic Research (4 ECTS)

(6) Master Thesis / Final Project

The Master thesis or the final artistic project including its scientific reflection is completed in the fourth semester. Either is dedicated to an individually chosen topic from the contents covered in the university study programme and serves as evidence of the participants' ability for independent, scientific work in terms of content and methodology. Only students with an academic background in an artistic subject have the option to produce a final artistic project with scientific reflection related to human rights issues. The topic and approach of the artistic project must be in line with the programme focus of human rights application. It is to be accompanied by a written, comprehensive account of the context in which the project is positioned. The Master thesis / the artistic final project is the work of one person; it will be supervised by a member of the teaching staff and will be assessed by the exam committee.

§ 7. Exam Regulations

Prerequisites for completing the Master programme are:

1. active participation in the learning process and 80% student attendance in all courses; the management and coordination team may authorize exceptions in justified cases;
2. positive assessment of the written seminar papers and exams;
3. conception, organization, implementation and documentation of a research project;
4. positive assessment of the written final work (Master thesis or final artistic project) by the exam committee consisting of the Vienna Master academic staff and selected members of the scientific advisory board;
